PATH

Problem

- People are experiencing many struggles during the pandemic that they may not even be thinking about.
- Quarantine is very hard for people and being aware of how you are doing overall is important.

Tasks

- Kaitlyn did the interface of the first screen and came up with the questions for the quiz.
- Aidan did the interface for all of the screens with questions on them.
- Alexandra did the coding/blocks portion of the app.

Approach

- We used basic questions that likely applied to many people to determine an overall rating for their quarantine.

Heart-Humanity

- Learned how to use the tally feature on thinkable.
- Anyone who is having a hard time finding themselves and their goals during these times, gives an opportunity to realize what you are doing good and what to improve on.
